you can’t fool me

tiny collages
murphyao ink
chicago
2026

It would be different, she thought,
the business of writing,
She
enjoyed reading,
gardening,
feeding the
birds
the most engrossing of subjects,

Explore the possibilities... short stories
as always, chock full of astonishing revelations ambiguities,
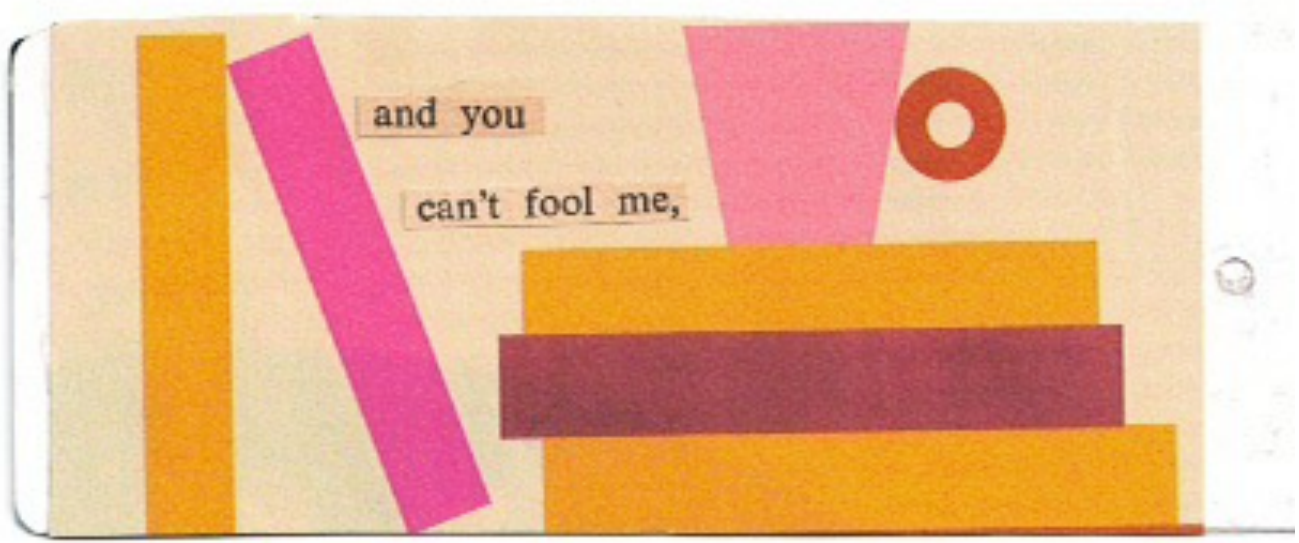
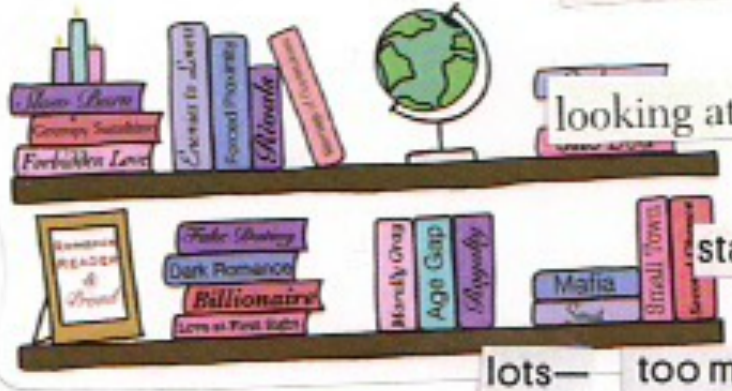
I didn't know



and you
can't fool me,

shelf help.



looking at my dad's globe

—a

stack of books

lots— too much—to look at

read
and
DREAM

collages on clothing tags for the american library association conference zine pavilion

hyde park,
chicago
may 2026